5. Why they did it, if you know.

The Petitioner, Sharif Hamzah, attended the University of Minnesota from approximately fall 1982 through spring 1984 and from fall 1991 through spring 1993. On approximately 1/1/2021 the Petitioner contacted the U of M admissions to inquire about graduation. Upon contacting the university, the Petitioner noticed that there where holds on his account related to student loans he had not taken out while a student. The alleged loans plus interest amounted to approximately 53K and where held by the Department of Education Default Resolution Group. All attempts by Petitioner to rectify the fraudulent loans with the Default Resolution Group failed. Subsequently, the Petitioner attempted to rectify the problem by contacting the Department of Student Finances @ the University of Minnesota. Petitioner was told by Staff (Maggie O'Neill) that the holds on his record would not be lifted until the Dept. of Ed sent a letter authorizing the lifting of any holds related to default student loans. Ultimately, the fraudulent student loans were transferred to Great Lakes Educational Loan Services, Inc.

The Petitioner was told that a consolidation of the loans would allow him to have the holds lifted while the facts of the fraudulent loans could be sorted out. Ironically, after consolidation, the holds weren't lifted. To date, all attempts to rectify the problem with Great Lakes has failed. Because of the actions of the Defendants in the above captioned action, the Petitioner has suffered both financially and psychologically over the past 19 years. Ultimately, the Petitioner wants damages for the financial and psychological trauma imposed upon him by the Defendants.
